Chapter 1 by Callie Rebnicky

The prison walls caved in. My heart pounded. "I NEED to get out of here!" I yelled. "Are you ok Arashi?" My cellmate Haruka asked. "I am very claustrophobic Haruka, you know that." She gave me a blank stare.

I was in prison for murdering a richie and I was caught.

My family was poor, poor enough that we can't even buy our own food.

My sisters Asuna and Harota, starved and I told them I would be back with food. I had gone to one of the local bread shops in our village and asked for some bread. The owners of that bread shop knew who I was so I didn't need to pay. But tradgey happened, when I came home they were found stabbed to death, both my sisters and my mother...

Chapter 2 by Charlotte Odiase　　　　　　　　　　　　　　　　✏

I saw him. The murderer. Tears filled my eyes. A flashback came back to me. My father, who left the family very young. I always had a little hope that he would one day return, but one day, a letter came to the front door. I opened it in secrecy. I never showed it to my mother or sisters. He was dead. I now have regret.

Something inside me had snapped that day. I had always been told to be strong, not to cry. But all the memories came flooding back, too hard for me to keeps down. But I didn't stop there. I shot the businessman who confronted me, the woman who walked into the office and saw the blood dripping from the wall, the two security guards and a single policeman.

Most would call me pyschopathic. Maybe they're right..or maybe I am. I see life as a game, you play people or you get played. You kill, or you get killed.
